Hurricane Harvey has wreaked havoc on the US. The impact will likely be felt by many for months and years from now. There are no words that can really heal those pains in the short term. The tragedy of loss of life and injuries cannot be minimized. Yet, this, and other disasters remind us of the benefits of wholesaling real estate, which could also be an essential tool for helping the affected to bounce back and get ahead financially after this storm.

The loss of homes, rental property investments, businesses, and income in the wake of Harvey is massive. Many won't get insurance payouts. Those that do will often find it is too little, far too late. The gap in between can be financially crushing, with lifelong, and even multigenerational consequences. It can be devastating.

This is one of the reasons that savvy real estate investors love wholesaling. They are in and out, and paid. Typically within days, if not just a few hours. That dramatically reduces the risk of loss from natural and manmade disasters. You are out and paid before a storm can wipe you out, wreck your rehab work, or the market can change on you. There are many other benefits of wholesaling real estate too, but these cannot be underestimated right now.

Among the other advantages is the fact that it is very easy and fast to get into wholesaling. You don't need lots of cash or great credit. You can even start bringing in lump sums or great cash flow in 30 days or less. This makes it one of the best ways for those impacted by hurricane Harvey to bounce back. If you lost a home, investments, a business, or you can't work, wholesaling may be the one thing that saves you and your family financially. It could also prove to deliver far better income and lifestyle freedom than you've ever experienced before too.
